Viscometer

HTD13285 viscometer is a completely-new coaxial cylinder viscometer designed by our company. The viscometer has embedded high accuracy sensor, which is used to measure the rotor rotation angle caused by the fluid sample. It adopts stepper motor that achieve a stable and accurate revolving speed. The panel keys are clearly marked for easy operation. High-resolution LCD can display the rotation angle of the inner cylinder and rotation speed of the cylinder in real time. The product can be widely used in oil, chemical, food and pharmaceutical industries.

Characteristics

- Easy maintenance;
- One-touch operation;
- No need to stop motor during speed change;
- The speed can be easily changed by pressing the button;
- The viscosity and speed are displayed on the digital display screen;
- The equipped power adapter makes it available in any country or region in the world.

The conventional combination of cylinder, inner cylinder and torsion spring maintains the repeatability of the rheological test.
